Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Starr et al. (US 2005/0122986) in view of Hass (US 2005/0027793).

1. Regarding claims 1, 5, 12 and 22-30, Starr discloses a method comprising buffering packet header and payload data corresponding to several inbound TCP packets in an inbound buffer (fig. 1, item 11), performing TCP input processing of the packet header and payload data via a multi-threaded hardware engine (fig. 2A, item 24; para. 189-190), where the threads are processed by hardware (para. 8). Further regarding claim 12, outbound TCP packets are generated (fig. 2B). Regarding claims 22-30, the method is implemented on an IC having respective hardware devices (fig. 2; para. 14; note: ASIC).

2. However, Starr does not disclose concurrently processed threads (para. 190). Hass discloses concurrently processed threads (fig. 5E and 6; para. 69). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled at the time the invention was made to have concurrent processing of threads in the invention of Starr in order to reduce latency or blocking in thread processing (Hass, para. 69).
3. Regarding claims 2 and 13, in Starr the thread processing is done by a hardware schedulers (para. 8; para. 190).
4. Regarding claims 3 and 14, in Starr the thread processing comprises saving thread states (para. 8; note: TCB).
5. Regarding claims 4 and 15, in Starr the engine is a TOE (para. 35).
6. Regarding claims 6-7, in Starr DMA is concurrently performed for transferring data to a location in a host memory (fig. 5C; para. 121).
7. Regarding claims 8-10 and 19-20, in Starr the existence of a TCP connection is determined and a TCP connection context is generated and stored (para. 190; note: context is stored in a register), where the context is further loaded and processed (para. 190).
8. Regarding claims 11 and 21, in Starr a hash based lookup is used to load contexts (paras. 50-53 and 90; para 190).
9. Regarding claims 16-18, in Starr data is transferred from a host memory to a network interface controller (fig. 1; fig. 2B) using DMA (para. 121).
